The conference between the committee of the Master Plumbers' Association and the Health Board, on Tuesday last, developed an opposition to the law for the registration of plumbers which has taken form in the proposed amendments to the law that have been sent to the Legislature. The maste, plumbers desire to prevent the registration of all plumbers who are not licensed by the Board of Public Works, and they also wish to amend the law so that a master plumber can get an injunction to prevent the construction of any building which he believes to be in process of construction contrary to law. These proposed amendments do not meet the approval of the Board of Health. Prof. Charles F. Chandler, President of the Board of Health, when questioned on the subject said: "The most important part of the law with reference to plumbing is already in The alarm, which was immediately given, operation successfully, and has met with no opposition. That part relates to the approval by the Board of Health of all plans for the construction of new buildings, by means of which we regulate the ventilation, drainage, loca on and construction of water pipes, &c. The struction of new buildings, by means of which we regulate the ventilation, drainage, location and construction of water pipes, &c. The statistics of disease proved that such regulation was necessary, and we believe it will benefit the health of the city. We have supervised the plans of 300 houses.

"The law requires that all plumbers shall be registered before March, 1882. Thus far we have registered only eight journeymen and seventy master plumbers. No plumber not registered can work in this city after March I without committing a misdemeanor. A committee of the master plumbers came here last Tuesday and urged the Health Board to permit the master plumbers' society to decide what plumbers should be registered by the Health Board. We told the committee that the Legislature had directed us to register all plumbers carrying on their trade in the city of New York, and that we could not delegate that duty to any other persons. The Chairman of the committee became so offensive and insulting that it was necessary to threaten to call in a policeman to eject him from the building in order to bring him into respectful silence. The remainder of the interview was concluded with his associates. The amendments to the law proposed by the committee are objectionable. The one which proposes to permit a licensed plumber to procure an injunction would place builders at the merey of unscrupulous rivals.

"The most objectionable amendment proposed is the one that provides that only licensed plumbers as are recommended by the Master Plumbers association. The effect of the amendment would be to place not only all the master plumbers and 4.000 journeymen plumbers at the merey of that association, and to make the Health Board a mere clerk to record its decisions. There are about 495 master plumbers and 4.000 journeymen plumbers of the control the plumbing business of this city by a legal enactment.

"So far we have registered all plumbers who have applied. We have not susposed that we wore called upon to establish a critical board to

They said they had been at work in it every day, and that they certainly should not have persisted in coming if they thought their lives were in danger. Mr. Burns said that he was the first to notice the crack in the iron pillar in the basement. Ho had watched it very closely, and was positive that it had not grown ionger in twenty-ir hours. He was satisfied that the pillar, is it stood was quite strong enough to support the weight on it estimated at 500 tons.

Mr. George B. Post, the architect of the building, said there was no cause for alarm; that the suspension of work by the plasterers and laborers was only on account of the stoppage of the elevator that carried their materials; that the weight put on the cracked pillar was 520 tons, less than one-fortieth part of what it was intended to bear, and that there would be no difficulty in putting in a new column. He said that the apprehension of danger from the building's sinking was a fuss about nothing. SCHEFFS REMEDY FOR SMALL-POX. Concealing a Case in his Big Family and Treating the Patient.

A physician of the Health Department yester-say visited the family of John Scheff, consisting of iwelve persons, who live in two small rooms in the tens ment at 199 East Fourth street. On a bed, concealed by blankets and shawls hung from the ceiling, he found an right-year-old child in the stage of small-pox which

The father admitted that he knew the nature of the disease, and had not reported the case, as he did not wish the child to be taken to the Small-pox Hospital. He had treated the patient himself, he said, as he had abandoned his former secupation of pedditing for that of a dector. His system of treatment for diphtheria and kindred complaints, he sxplained, was that of puncturing the parts affected with needles. Scheff does not believe in vaccination, so that his remaining nine children, whose agree range from 20 years to two months, were exposed to infection without any prevention. The elder children worked in factories and stores in different parts of the city, and carried the contugion to those places with them. Although probably too late to prevent their taking the disease, the Health officers vaccinated all the well members of Scheff's family, and the sick child was taken to the hospital. Persons who had come in contact with the nembers of the family, both at their lodging and where they worked were vaccinated. Scheff is to be prosecuted.

The Bistrict Abrorner at Albany has courseled to have the case argued on short notice, and has placed it at the hend of the calendar for Tuesday. Meanwhile Gov Cornell will be asked for a respite of five weeks, pending the proceedings and the decision of the Court. Sindram himself opposes and ridicules this final move, as he has every other effert made by his occursed to save his life. AN OLD MAN'S HASTE TO DIE. His Body Found Hanging in a Room which he had Set on Fire.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Price, who occupies the first floor of 232 West Thirty-third street, was awakened by the noise of shouting and stamping overhead in the rooms occupied by Moses Herzog, her landlord. She called up to him, "Don't make such a noise, Mr. Herzog, you'll wake up all the neighbors." Then he became quiet and she went back to bed. At half-past 6 o'clock she arose, and found the house full of smoke Her husband discovered that the smoke came from Herzog's rooms. The old man's door was locked, and no answer could be got from him. The door was burst open. In the centre of the back room they found a straw mattress blazing a little and smoking a great deal. The fire had aiready burned through brought some firemen, who aided in extinguishing the flames. One of the men in attempting to enter a room beyond that in which the fire was kindled, which was Mr. Herzog's bedroom, ran against a body dangling in the door-the corpse of the landlord. Herzog was found to have hanged himself by mens of a small clothes line which he had passed over the lower bar of the transom frame, through a little hole knocked in the glass. Only his underclothes were upon him, and they were badly burned. His hair was singed and his skin burned, the could hardly have been so badly burned and in such a way, after hanging himself. It seemed as if he must have started to burn immself along with his house, and afterward resorted to the rope.

Moses Herzag was a German Hebrew, 65 years old, who has lived in this country thirty years. When he first came here he was a peddler, carrying a pack. Then he kept a little fancy goods store at 528 Broome street. When he sold out his store and retired, twelve years ago, he had money enough to buy two good houses—one in Brooklyn, and the other that in which he hanged himself. Two yoars ago his wife died, and since then his mind has been giving way. Not long ago he made a will dividing his property among his brothers and nephews. His gold watch and $125 he gave to his nephew Max Herzog, casually remarking as he did so that he would'nt require them much longer, as he proposed killing himself. He then punched a little hole in a corner of one of the panes of glass of the transom and provided himself with a rope. Still none of his relatives seem to have considered his proceedings of a character to require their interference.

CAUGHT BY THE SHARPERS.

The Experience of a Resident of Knoxville who Met Two Strangers in the Street. A prominent resident of Knoxville, Tenn., visited New York in August last. As he was walking in the street one afternoon he was accosted familiarly by a stranger, who called him by a wrong name. The Knoxville man set the stranger right, mentioning to him incidentally what his real name was, whereupon the stranger gracefully apologized and departed. Next day the Knoxville man was again greeted in the street by a stranger, who called his name accurately, and who by his conversation ap-peared to be wholly familiar with Knoxville. The upshot of the last meeting was that the citizen from Tennessee fell a victim to the citizen from Tennessee fell a victim to the "bunco" men, and that in a quiet room they fleeced him of $80 in cash, and forced him to sign checks to the amount of $1,250. He laid his case before the police, and returned home. The police failed to discover the swindlers. In due course of time the checks were presented for payment, but orders had been given not to pay them, and they were protested. More was heard of them later through the following letter addressed to the Knoxville man:

Dran Sin: A client of mine, and a very credulous man, I assure you, upon false representations made to him, has taken in a business way, your cheeks, amounting to $1.250. Now comes the question, How shall we get rid of them! They were made in New York, Auc. 5, 1881. They were as I see, sent to Knoxville for collection, but were returned protested. I want to dispose of them if I can before the commencement of action, my correspondent at Knoxville advising this course. You can have both of your checks upon payment of $500. This is a fair proposition, and I hope it will meet your approved. We client a young clother here, has been badly stuck, and is willing to dispose of them for that sum. Let me hear from you about it. The office indicated in the above letter is the office of Mr. S. Albert Mincho, a young lawyer. He said yesterday that Mr. Hayes had been in the same class with him at the Columbia Law School, and that he had been in the habit of writing letters in the office. He came in only occasionally Mr. Mincho said, and had not been in for three days. The checks, Mr. Mincho said, bore the endorsement of Byron A. Cohen, a lawyer and an agent for the New York Life Insurance Company. They were deposited in the Central National Basic of New York and returned pretested. Str. Mincho says that he does not know who Mr. Hayes's clients were that gave him the checks to collect.

The Knoxville man has expressed his readiness to come on and prosecute the men who disceed him. He declares that he will not pay the checks or compromise for them. He has engaged agents in this city to look into the status of any lawyers who have been connected with the collection of the checks.

The Late Importations of these Goods by A. T. Stewart & Co.

Not only in the shawl department, but all over the house in the retail sections of the store of A. T. Stewart & Co., there has been during the past week a profise and beautiful display of Cashmere and India shawls. A late importation of the East India Company places a surplus of these Oriental goods in the markets of London, and from that surplus large importations have been made by leading New York houses. The dehave been made by leading New York houses. The demand for these goods will probably be fully up to the suppix, for as india and Cashmere shawls of every kind sold readily at Stewart's during the past week at the reduced prices at which they are marked, it is supposed that as the spring opens the sales will be even larger than at present. The revival of the taste for Oriental goods and styles is a sure indication that India shawls will probably be as fashionable in the near future as they were in the period of the first French empire, when the Empress Josephine owned a thousand.

The variety of shawls seen at Stewart's is greater, perhaps, than has ever before been displayed by one house in New York. Everything in the form of a shawl, from Decca and Chudda, shawls, at prices ranging from tendollars to a hundred can be found here; affil in Cashmere shawls, the reductions on importations have brought these costly wraps at figures ranging from $2,200 and $1,500 to $100 apiece.

The skin is composed of two layers, which may be separated from each other by the action of a blister. The thin portion which is raised up by the blister is called the scarf skin, the cuticle, or the epidermis: that which remains in connection with the body is the sensitive skin, the cutis, the derma, or the true skin. Each has separate dutie to perform. The scarf skin is horny and inscnsible, and horny and insensible, and serves as a sheath to protect the more sensitive skin under it. Were the seart skin taken off, we could not bear to have snything touch us. The derma, anything touch us. The derma or true skin, and its glands or true skin, and its glands, oil tubes, &c., are the seat of all cutaneous diseases, whether itching, scaly, pustular, or ordinary blotches, pimples, and blackheads. That the skin may be pilable and health the Creator has wisely provided by placing in the true skin small glands and tubes, whose office it is to prepare and pour out upon the surface the proper amount of oil. On some parts of the body they do not exist, but are abundant on the face, nose, ears, head, eyelids, &c. They produce the wax of the ears, and on the head they open into the sheath of the hair, and furnish it with nature's own hair oil or pomade. When the skin is healthy these little vessels are always at work, and constantly responding to the demands made upon them Consequently, no person should be afraid to wash thor oughly every day with soap and water, lest, as the "Bos ton Medical Journal" once taught, the skin be injured by having the oil removed from it. Frequent washing with pure soap (free from caustic alkalies) and lukewarn water, followed by brisk rubbing with a coarse towel will do more to preserve the healthy action of the oil glands and tubes—upon which depends a clear and wholesome complexion-than all the cosmetics in the world. So important is the free and perfect action of the sweat and fat or oil glands in the preservation of the general health, as well as the special condition of the skin, that particular attention to them will be rewarded by in-creased physical health. They discharge upon the surface of the body about two and one-half pounds of mat ter per day, and their importance in the purification of the blood and fluids of the body is so great that were oiled silk, death would soon ensue. The daily occupa tion of many, want of cleanliness in others, and the in heritance of a sluggish skin, pave the way for numerous diseases of these vessels and tubes. Their contents, in stead of flowing freely, become hard and impacted, and the vessels are not emptied. Hence the origin of many diseases. Sometimes the action of the gland is too great, and oil is poured out so profusely that the surface shines with it. At other times there is so little that the skin is dry and hard. In the hardened oily matter that constitutes comedones are found small animals, which Erasmus Wilson, the great authority, calls "the animal of the oily product of the skin." The secret of personal beauty and freedom from cutaneous diseases lies in an acquaintance with and intelligent use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, which, being founded upon the most important discovery of modern times, the Poral Theory, in-variably cure every species of Itching, Scaly, and Pustu-lar Eruptions of the Skin and Scalp from dandruff to Scrofula. They consist of CUTICURA, a Medicinal Jelly. CUTICURA SOAP, prepared from it, and containing in modified form its great healing properties, blended with rarest flower odors, and the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the New Blood Purifier, all of which act (the RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICURA and SOAP externally upon the 7,00,000 Pores of the Skin, and thus, by internal and external purification, cure when all the other means and the best physicians invariably fail.

N. B.—The CUTICURA SOAP, pronounced by Mile, Bern, hardt the queen of cosmetics, is an exquisite toilet, bath, and nursery sanative. It restores, beautifies, and whitens
